Counselors

As school counselors, it is our responsibility to help your children get the best possible education. A good education is not only about teaching academics, but learning good social skills. This means, among other things, learning how to get along with other children, making good decisions, controlling anger, accepting responsibility, and being aware of the intent to supplement learning that takes place at home with small group and classroom guidance. We are also in the building to help students deal with particular difficulties such as illness, death, divorce, etc.

One of our major functions is to be of help to parents. If you have a particular concern about your child, we welcome the opportunity to meet with you and discuss that matter. It is important to remember that school personnel and parents working together are a winning combination for children. All children deserve to be winners. Together, we can help your child realize and achieve this goal.
